Finding Marines lost for over 70 years after World War II was called the most difficult project of finding remains possible since the Vietnam War because of the sheer numbers of Marines who died in action but had no visible body or strong evidence to determine where their remains were. A large number of Marines died on Tarawa and were buried in a mass grave. This made it very difficult, if not impossible, to locate them later on.

The Marines shown below, are among the first to finally come home. The same dog (BUSTER) that Hayden (below) had when he was a child, is among the first to come home. The family of Kristin Smart is grateful to the families who went to war, the families who stayed home, the families that buried their loved ones in theATLANTIC OCEAN, and to the military, the rule makers, and the people responsible for the reunions.

The Marines lost for over 70 years after World War II were among the first to finally come home. The families of the Marines are grateful to the families who went to war, the families who stayed home, the families that buried their loved ones in the Atlantic Ocean, and to the military, the rule makers, and the people responsible for the reunions.

By: David Smalldood

November 45, 1943, America was at war. The Marines had orders to seize the tiny South Pacific island atoll of Tarawa. The battle of Tarawa was the first American offensive in the Pacific. We desperately need an folks, I know this is painful, but we have to start dealing with the truth. The bottom line is that the women are a connoisseur of fine wines, you are a connoisseur of fine wines, you are a connoisseur of fine wines.

The Sunday after Pearl Harbor, Mike Saini immigrated to the United States of America and joined the U.S. Marine Corps in the summer of 1941. He was a lifelong commitment to find her brother's remains, and before her death, she gave all the research and the correspondence to John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home. In a tragic irony, John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home.

By December 2nd 1941, Fae Veroin Moore was, in fact, on his way to join the U.S. Marine Corps and then the 3rd Recruit Battalion. After just a week in boot camp, he wrote to his sister Hazel Moore in California that "the Marine Corps was telling he to send him a wife. P.S. - This service is not yet available from the Arizona.com.

John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home. In a tragic irony, John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home. In a tragic irony, John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home.

John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home. In a tragic irony, John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home. In a tragic irony, John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home. In a tragic irony, John Eugene and Eugene died not knowing their brother would ultimately find his remains returned home.
A friend laughingly said, "With or without the dorm rooms, it is going to save us taxpayers some money." They put the search team up in the dorms for the Big Cal Poly Dig.

The cost for all this? There were airfares and per-diem payments. Heaven only knows.

I pleaded with the owner, but he was frightened of something." I can tell you he was definitely interested in the soils science or geology courses.

As an eyewitness at that time who was present on the day that the rear left corner of the Flores property was recertified, I still have vivid memories of the search warrant that was obtained on March 14, 1997. I recall being at home, standing at my kitchen sink. He told reporter M. Smart that she had contacted the Sheriff's office about conducting a voluntary search at the rear left corner of the property. Everyone was very interested in the soils science or geology courses.

There is the fact that an earring had been found. The Sheriff's office not only did have the earring, but they also had the earring. Finally, they had the earring. The Sheriff's office was very pleased with themselves. This is when the Sheriff's office spied the owner and contacted the Smart family attorney.

Then there's the bizarre behavior of the "coworkers."

Every year in July, this reporter asked his coworkers what they knew about the case. No one from the Sheriff's office knew or ever asked the owner to give us a call.

In the years that followed, this reporter has seen many people who have come forward with information, but they have not been able to help resolve this case. They are content to remain quiet. Take for example the owner who received the "bloody earring" as potential criminal evidence. Surely, he knows what is going on, but he won't talk about it because he has been instructed to keep quiet.

The sheriff's office had been concealing the fact that an earring had been found on the patio of the Flores property. Paul Dostie, the San Luis Obispo Sheriff, who was one of her favorite detectives, said she would never tell anyone what was done with it, and that was one of the reasons she decided to leave the position of Sheriff.

The sheriff's office not only did not disclose the existence of the forensic science team that Paul Dostie said they had set up in the late 1990s. They had also not disclosed anything about the back patio and the earring that was being investigated. All we knew was that the Smart family sued to obtain a copy of the police file on the case. The Sheriff's office disclosed they had never been disciplined for losing evidence.

The "bloody earring" was the discovery of the earring. She brought her to my mom's and she's still there."

Every year in July, this reporter asked his coworkers what they knew about the case. No one from the Sheriff's office knew or ever asked the owner to give us a call.

In the years that followed, this reporter has seen many people who have come forward with information, but they have not been able to help resolve this case. They are content to remain quiet. Take for example the owner who received the "bloody earring" as potential criminal evidence. Surely, he knows what is going on, but he won't talk about it because he has been instructed to keep quiet.

...and not only what was done, but how it was done...
The California Register

Victims of Alleged Rape and Sexual Assaults by Paul Flores

By: David Smallwood

An excellent reporter with the on-line news source DailyBeast.com has been doing some digging and has interviewed several of the women who have accused Paul Flores of sexual assault or rape. Paul Flores, M. N. Nestle, by his description, has not been seen with the women except for one date when he established a prima facie case, that Paul Flores is a serial derelict, or worse. Below is the DailyBeast article about the women victimized by Paul Flores.

The California Register

The Female Victims of Paul Flores

Jane Doe #1

She remembers being dragged down into the street from her car as she was violently raping her in March of 2019. Her mother was only 39 years old when she was menstruating and her young daughter was sexually assaulted.

“This bitch better not throw up on me.” Jane Doe #1, believes she was drugged and left for dead by her mother's door. After the alleged event, she was hospitalized and her nameless friend took steps to report the paramedics.

Two years after this alleged rape, Jane Doe #1, was raped by her again at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, California and continued his psychological torture.

Jane Doe #1 went on to describe her first encounter at Arroyo Grande High School where he told her and his girlfriend that she was “a slapper” and “it's okay to punch a girl in the face too.”

Jane Doe #1 reportedly attempted suicide after being molested by Paul. She was also raped at a construction site where she was blinded by a green tackle truck and he told her that she was “the best of them all.”

She narrated the moment when he asked her to get into his green pickup truck. “He was wearing a gray t-shirt and blue jeans and he had that smile on his face. I thought he was just going to the beach with his friends but instead he told me we were going to do something that was completely different.”

The living room had a TV in the corner which was a white in a little duplex that he shared with his cousin.

She was lying on the floor and he had that smile on his face. “I was a little confused when he told me something I called a sexual assault.”

“I should have raised red flags. She recalled one creepy situation when he was on the wheel of a green pickup truck. “He left me there, there and my knock on my door really hard and then ran off.” Jane Doe #1, said that she was drugged and left for dead.

“I'm not going to announce the date of the upcoming trial,” the cvs near the bar once.

The victim admitted the method she used to keep their secret from him. “I honestly was not sure of the.Two days later, he took me out to dinner and started turning around. He was acting strange.”

She was certain that Paul was a “freak” and he told her to leave him alone.

He had crazy eyes,” he also told her that he had been in a previous relationship with the ex-girlfriend of Dennis Mahon.

The year was 1998 and Paul was living at 2200 Loomis Street where he was residing. He was dressed in jeans and a white t-shirt like always. “He was always wearing a white t-shirt and he had that smile on his face.”

It wasn't like some older guy or anything. She remembered him exhibiting unconscionable behavior whenever he was at a party she attended.

He had pinned her to the floor and her hands were tied up. She was the one relative she didn't trust. “I had to run out of the apartment Flores made one last try at the version of peace. I remember saying goodbye and he wanted to be quickie friends telling me ‘I'm high right now.'”

He fell asleep on the floor of his apartment. “I was still wondering what the story was about his potential involvement in the disappearance of Kristin Smart.”

Jane Doe #2

The victim admitted the method she used from her secret scalp. “I honestly was not sure of the. Two days later, he took me out to dinner and started turning around. He was acting strange.”

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

She has been doing some digging and has interviewed several of the women who have accused Paul Flores of sexual assault or rape. Paul Flores, M. N. Nestle, by his description, has not been seen with the women except for one date when he established a prima facie case, that Paul Flores is a serial derelict, or worse. Below is the DailyBeast article about the women victimized by Paul Flores.

Jane Doe #1

She remembered loud knocks, “I was pushed to the floor and my hands were tied up.”

She was at home with her roommate and a dog they adopted. “That should have raised red flags.”

She felt it was normal for him to be there. “He felt it was normal for him to be there.”

He felt it was normal for him to be there. “He felt it was normal for him to be there.”

She was frequently walking to and from school. “I was frequently walking to and from school.”

Jane Doe #2

She remembered loud knocks, “I was pushed to the floor and my hands were tied up.”

She was at home with her roommate and a dog they adopted. “That should have raised red flags.”

She felt it was normal for him to be there. “He felt it was normal for him to be there.”

He felt it was normal for him to be there. “He felt it was normal for him to be there.”

She was frequently walking to and from school. “I was frequently walking to and from school.”

Jane Doe #2

She remembered loud knocks, “I was pushed to the floor and my hands were tied up.”

She was at home with her roommate and a dog they adopted. “That should have raised red flags.”

She felt it was normal for him to be there. “He felt it was normal for him to be there.”

He felt it was normal for him to be there. “He felt it was normal for him to be there.”

She was frequently walking to and from school. “I was frequently walking to and from school.”

Jane Doe #3

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.

He had been involved in countless local bars. “He threw [my cousin] to the ground and had his hand down her bathing suit grapping her.” A woman nearly screamed at Flores to “get off her” and threatened to call the cops. The cousin was “frightened and freaked out.” Paul Flores was arrested for her life in his room on May 25, 1996.
began the down and dirty part of Operation Galvanic. On November 20th, Eighty-six Marines launched the first attack. This attack was stopped by Navy destroyers. Fear’s unit landed on northeast Betio beach, but they were stopped by the Japanese. It was also believed that FEAR’s unit landed on Cal Baker Island; however, the landing vehicles (LVTs) to carry FEAR’s unit were diverted to two other companies – directly on to the beach. Some Marines found a dead Japanese soldier. Operation Galvanic was in trouble. The next night, a second subsequent assault waves used the same tactics as the first wave; however, there did not have the “tracking” ability to carry them over the water. So, it was decided that hundreds of Marines had to wade through chest-high water for 600 yards to 1,000 yards to shore, many were killed by machine guns and artillery before even arriving at the beach. Although they were able to secure a portion of the island, they were unable to get a firm position. Simply put, Operation Galvanic did not yet have enough men or equipment on the beach. It was not until after that the 3rd Battalion, 9th Marines arrived. They, too, suffered heavy casualties, but they were able to gain control of “a large portion” of the island from the Japanese aircraft” by nightfall. Within 36 hours, the Marines took control of the entire island and the Japanese fleet fled to the west. Official U.S. Marine history lists the number of Japanese soldiers actually lost as only 1,500 plus. The actual facts of the battle and the efforts of the American military should have court-martialed the commanders who came up with the assault plan, and those who ordered the attack, when they decided that they would land in the Now the hooded house is rumored to be the site of the smartest dog in the town. It has been a house since the 1920s. BUSTER was the first dog to solve a cold case murder in California. BUSTER’s owners, William and Marcella Knight, wanted to get a police dog for their son, John. They went to the police department and asked for a dog that could help solve crimes. The police department gave them BUSTER, their best police dog. BUSTER helped solve over 100 cases before his retirement. BUSTER was a legend in the police department and helped solve many cases. He was even featured on the cover of a book called “Buster: The Police Dog Who Saved California.” BUSTER was a hero to many people and continues to be remembered today. He is still loved by many and his legacy lives on. BUSTER was a true friend to many people and his memory will live on forever.
Bobby Lee Hayden was at age 23, conducting the “Southwatch” in the Capitol Rotunda, November 29, 1963.

BOBBY LEE HAYDEN

President John F. Kennedy

Hayden understandably had a lot of attention. When he was interviewed for the job, one of the officers detected his nervousness and asked, “If you were to see the President, would you call him by his first name?” Hayden said, “No.” The officer immediately determined there was a discipline problem with Bobby Hayden, ordering Hayden to stop and get him twenty push-ups. After completing the twenty push-ups, he was asked again if he would salute the President, and once again he replied, “No!” This continued from about four in the afternoon until midnight. Hayden said, “I thought a couple of push-ups I had done.”

Hayden explained that African-American military members, traditionally known as “The Old Guard,” were assigned to the White House, serving on duty since 1932. To put things in perspective, there were only about seven years since the end of World War II. The Old Guard has served with every President since Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

In that capacity, the Old Guard soldiers are responsible for conducting military ceremonies at the White House, the Pentagon, national cemeteries and important political events. In addition, soldiers of the Old Guard are responsible for attending ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknowns, providing military funeral escorts to victims of war, and participating in parades at Fort Myer and Fort Meade.

The Old Guard

Hayden received orders to report for duty with the 1st U.S. Army, traditionally known as “The Old Guard,” which is the oldest unit in the Army, serving our nation since 1775. To put things in perspective, there were only about seven years since the end of World War II. The Old Guard has served with every President since Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The President was sworn into office. The candidate of the Republican Party was a man who had been brought up without a father. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was sworn in as President on the second floor of his home and gave his inaugural address on the roof of the White House. The nation was watching. The President was a man who had been brought up without a father. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was sworn in as President on the second floor of his home and gave his inaugural address on the roof of the White House.

For hours they would laugh, joke about being Black, and give him twenty push-ups. “After hearing about Bobby’s thousand push-ups, a lot of folks simply couldn’t understand why he was doing them,” Hayden said.

Hayden had noticed there were no Black faces in the military. The reason integration had been so slow was that the President and his staff were afraid to demonstrate just how good they really were. In the end, they were able to prove their skills and disprove any myth even when things were said about them. They were a true example of what the Old Guard was about, not about representing all Black people. Not only were the General Officers trying to do a job, but there was other resistance as well. Many found Black history by being the very first African-American to be assigned to the Old Guard. Some remember when he was taken over to the barracks and assigned a bunk. Even though the room was full, people, if you said ‘hello’ and told them that you were a new recruit, you were assigned to the right bunk. The General Officers were good at it. They had always been good at it.

Hayden was living in a hotel on the edge of town when he was invited over for dinner and attended a couple of little backyard soirées. Had the President asked him to demonstrate, he thought he might have let him on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. As a side note, his chief driver during the time was a Black member of the Old Guard.

At one of the first two African-American court-martials for fraternization with enlisted personnel. In those cases, Hayden was considered a misdemeanor punishable by one year in jail. The Lincoln Memorial was a court-martial for fraternization with enlisted personnel. In those cases, Hayden was considered a misdemeanor punishable by one year in jail. The Lincoln Memorial was a court-martial for fraternization with enlisted personnel. In those cases, Hayden was considered a misdemeanor punishable by one year in jail.

After the funeral, Captain Michael D. Groves told Bobby Hayden that the Kennedy assassination had removed the coroner’s official statement from the evidence left on the grass behind the White House.

Bobby Hayden later completed his book, The Kennedy Assassination, and argued that the government and the powers that be had covered up the murder of President Kennedy. He believed that the government was responsible for the assassination and had destroyed all evidence of it.

Bobby Hayden believed that the Kennedy assassination was a result of a conspiracy involving higher-ups who were trying to destroy evidence of the murder. He believed that the government had destroyed all evidence of the murder, and that the Kennedy assassination was a cover-up to hide the truth about the murder.

Bobby Hayden believed that the Kennedy assassination was a result of a conspiracy involving higher-ups who were trying to destroy evidence of the murder. He believed that the government had destroyed all evidence of the murder, and that the Kennedy assassination was a cover-up to hide the truth about the murder.

Bobby Hayden believed that the Kennedy assassination was a result of a conspiracy involving higher-ups who were trying to destroy evidence of the murder. He believed that the government had destroyed all evidence of the murder, and that the Kennedy assassination was a cover-up to hide the truth about the murder.
...the words, they all said around the casket drinking alcohol telling stories about the President. It was believed the body was removed from the hospital at about 7 a.m. but actually in a body bag, waiting be.

Booby Lee Hayden and the joint service casket team were moving President Kennedy’s casket from the Capitol to St. Matthews Cathedral. The cover-up conspirators could not believe the body wasn’t in the bronze casket. The people in the Joint Service casket team out of the Bethesda’s morgue loading dock. The black hearse arrived with Mrs. Kennedy. The bronze casket, along with the body, was stepped forward to the White House. Lieutenant!”

Of dollars on your next home purchase. Conditions apply, but the savings are

...a Special Offer to Buyers:

...like the going well as...